

Lorena

Rev. H. D. L. Webster

J. P. Webster

The years creep slow-ly by Lo - re - na. The snow is on the grass a - gain; The sun's low down the sky Lo - re - na. The frost gleams where the flow'rs have been. But the heart throbs on as warm-lyt now As when the sum-mer days were nigh. Oh! The sun can nev-er dip so low, A - down a - fec - tions cloud - less sky.

We loved each other then, Lorena,
More than we ever dared to tell.
And what we might have been, Lorena,
Had but our lovings prospered well —
But then, 'tis past, the years are gone,
I'll not call up their shadowy forms;
I'll say to them, "Lost years, sleep on!
Sleep on, nor heed life's pelting storms."

A hundred months have passed, Lorena,
Since last I held that hand in mine;
And felt the pulse beat fast, Lorena,
Though mine beat faster far than thine.
A hundred months, 'twas flowery May,
When up the hilly slope we climbed,
To watch the dying of the day,
And hear the distant church bells chime.

The story of the past, Lorena,
Alas! I care not to repeat,
The hopes that could not last, Lorena,
They lived, but only lived to cheat. ...

... I would not cause e'en one regret
To rankle in your bosom now;
For "If we try, we may forget,"
Were words of thine long years ago.

Yes, these were words of thine, Lorena,
They burn within my memory yet;
They touched some tender chords, Lorena,
Which thrill and tremble with regret.
'Twas not thy woman's heart which spoke;
Thy heart was always true to me;
A duty, stern and pressing, broke
The tie which linked my soul with thee.

It matters little now, Lorena,
The past is in the eternal past;
Our heads will soon lie low, Lorena,
Life's tide is ebbing out so fast.
There is a future! O, thank God!
Of life this is so small a part!
'Tis dust to dust beneath the sod;
But there, up there, 'tis heart to heart.
